Creating opportunities for better lives through Christ-centered service

Other than the words, “Christ-centered”, the most important element in our mission statement is the word “opportunities”.

If you are reading this page, it is likely you have been interested in, or devoted to, outreach for quite a while. You will be familiar with the biblical truth of choice. It is impossible to help change the situation of individuals and families until they, themselves, choose that they want things to be different. This truth undergirds most aspects of our ministry. We develop close relationships with the members of our community, and seek to identify the areas where help is needed from outside in order for the individual or family to pursue the ‘better path’ they have chosen for themselves. In other words, we partner with those that can help themselves, and do just what we need to do to help them improve their situation.

Of course, there are situations where an individual or family cannot help themselves, or potentially even contribute to the restoration effort. Examples might include severe disability, age related capability issues, a total loss home fire, etc. In these instances, where relief ministry is required, we do all that we can to be the answer to this need.

Helping without hurting is not an easy thing to accomplish. We continue to follow God’s lead with this objective in front of us at all times.
